Lt. Joe Laramie (ret) is a Program Manager with the National Criminal Justice Training Center (NCJTC) of Fox Valley Technical College working in the Missing and Exploited Children's and the Internet Crimes Against Children (ICAC) Training and Technical Assistance Programs. He retired from the Glendale, Missouri Police Department, with more than 30 years of child protection and child abuse investigation, and training experience. He created the Greater St. Louis ICAC Task Force and was the founding Commander of the MO ICAC. He was later an Administrator with the MO Attorney General's Office, with responsibility for online crimes against children, human trafficking, and the computer forensic lab. He was a subject matter expert on the MO Governor's Cyberbullying Task Force, the MO Task Force for the Prevention of Child Sexual Abuse and is currently on the TN DCS Child Abuse Prevention Coordinating Committee. From 2016 through 2021 he was on the Board of Directors for the Davis House Child Advocacy Center in his home of Franklin, TN, and currently serving on Board of Directors for the National Children's Alliance (NCA). He recently created the Online Child Safety Prevention Initiative, where numerous federal agencies, ICAC members and online protection organizations meet to identify and promote an effective and consistent online safety message for youth and families. He is an nationally and internationally known speaker on online crimes against children, child abuse and prevention. He holds a Bachelor of Science Degree in Criminal Justice Administration from Bellevue University and is a graduate of the FBI National Academy.
